

Abstract of the Disclosure:

A vehicle-mounted transmitter emits an interrogation code signal in a wave having elliptical or circular polarization. A portable receiver evaluates the received signal only if it receives field components in at least two spatial directions. If the interrogation code signal is accepted by the receiver, a response code signal is transmitted back to the motor vehicle as proof of authorization.

10/28/80 08:27:01 0344032

REL/cp